To whom it may concern

Reference: Sally Roberts

It is with great pleasure that I recommend Sally Roberts for a training and development assignment in your organisation. I have known her for the last four years and have worked with Sally on numerous training and development assignments. She facilitated various interventions across a spectrum of staff-levels (from senior management to lower-level employees) at Rennies Travel (where I worked as the organisation's National Talent Manager).

Sally is an extremely competent trainer and facilitator and is capable of delivering technical material (train the trainer; understanding organisational strategy, staff induction) as well as material where the objective is to develop softer skills (conflict management, customer service, negotiation skills, leadership development and performance enhancement).

Sally has extremely high standards and is passionate about developing people and about assisting client organisations in leveraging their people-capability. Her integrity is unquestioned and she will do whatever it takes to achieve the contracted objectives. She is 100% reliable, organized, professional and always a pleasure to work with.

Sally would be an asset to any organization or assignment and I am happy to give her my wholehearted endorsement.

Sincerely,

Valerie Hammond
