INTRODUCTION

Personally we are each potentially a 'basket of benefits' and it is essential to be aware of what those benefits are so as to master them and to know what we are capable of offering to the organisation

Communication is the cornerstone of all our interpersonal relationships and the foundation of all areas of effectiveness in our lives. With the constant increase of pace, the complex choices we have to make and the range of communication channels available, we have to access new and smarter ways of communicating. In exploring these ways, this programme includes a look at Emotional Intelligence, Social Intelligence as well as the pillars of Neuro Linguistic Programming in order to give the learner a deeper understanding of the need for our communication to become more intelligent and intuitive.

Through understanding personal branding, professional relationship building, developing effective communication and presentation fundamentals this programme provides the essentials to master business communication.
